Attempted Robbery at the Drug Store.

Another attempt to rob Chambers' drug store was made late early on Friday morning last, and was only frustrated by the fact that the store has a night pharmacist. After witnessing the departure of the S. H. Springfield, Constable Kershaw, in attempting to take possession of the store, thought he noticed a man enter in the drug store, and upon investigation discovered the steps as he looked inside the store, as the person there had been equipped with a knife, which having been reached to effect an escape. With the flash light in his hand and light in the other, Kershaw noticed the shadow in the dark, and he would go in after them. One of these men ran with a knife, ran into the pillbox and had several blows delivered when Kershaw fired. The man, however, got away from the store. At this point another man came out of the store, and after striking Kershaw with some blunt weapon made his escape. Mr. Chambers was called up and came down just as a car pulled out from the store, and the road headed west.

Probably due to the early arrival of the policeman, Mr. Chambers found nothing had been taken from the store, and so far no things have been heard of the two men who were.

Then he recalled war and military life. It developed the best in a man, and at this the Major beat his breast, directing his audience to that storehouse of accumulated virtues. Then he appealed to the young men to "get into the game." He painted the glory of it, the freedom of it; the story was the place where a man was a man. The hollows were the warrior, body-cuddles have to place in the world, especially with women. There was truth in the old song yet.

"If a lad has a head worthy
He must learn a gun to carry."

There is a lighter vein the gallant Major hinted at the shadow of the French girls and how they educated the Canadians. The manner indicated that but for the presence of the ladies he could tell more.

While he was speaking, the Colonel's hands were never still, but did his lips cease from trembling.

The Major then called for biscuits. "Our volunteers," he said, "in better than ten minutes. Description is coming, though," he glanced over his shoulder. "We cannot desert, sir. Army now. If men will not fight, if their own accord, there are other methods." The Major unconsciously tapped his sword.

Suddenly it became apparent, even to the Major, that the spirit had gone out of the meeting. The audience sat straightened and rigid. The dress had gone stiff. The current was off. There was no response to his call.

The appeal had not gone home to the men of the north who love the long trail, with its discipline and its peace, better yet, who do their duty from an inner sense, but in whom the thought of home broke a spell from the resolution.

The chairman tried to save the situation by saying that it was not something that could be done in a moment. The people began to whisper.

As Jack made his way back to the tent he was deeply distressed. There was no doubt but the night was bright with stars twinkling up, he saw the North Star, like an old friend, looking on calmly, serene and unchanging, though millions were weeping with war and blood. The Major and his thirty companions were away to their tents, but the Colonel as pale and shaken, quivering with the sense of what would be his fate.

The tent that night seemed with its light, with its warm, soft, red glow.

WOMAN SO SICK COULD NOT WORK

Helped by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Grateful, Jack. "I am glad to hear of that good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

"I will not be with you again. I was so sick that I could not work at all and could not see any of my friends. My head and heart were so bad. I am telling all of my friends how good it was. I will answer all letters I get from women."

—Miss Mary Sullivan, Graveland, Ont.

of song, bursts of harsh laughter. The Major was a prince of story-tellers. "Say, boys, did you hear this one? One of the boys who had been on leave."

"Bursts of laughter followed, then there was a roar. "Too much hard liquor is bad," laughed the Major, "but too much beer is just right. No danger of being pinched for being noisy—we have both the proprietor and the policeman. Now, listen to this. There was a French girl."

At one o'clock the party broke up. The Major had secured six women. He decided the next morning to let Private Cross go back to the City. The kid was all right, but he looked "pep." This was a job for a real hero, and after all, the best little creature apart from himself, if it ever could be considered from himself, was the mother-colored bottle. It gave just the proper warmth and glow.

Jack made his journey around by Edmonton to Eagle Mines, arriving there on the first day of February. There had been no reply to his wire. He stepped off the train with a strangely beating heart. He would be there, surely, but the position was almost sure. Not a person whom he knew did he see as he hurried across the street and over to his own house.

The door was not locked, and he went in. A strange scene met his eyes—dirty dishes on the table, the remains of a stir-fried meal, notes from signs on the plates, the bed showing that it had been slept in; the coffee pot was on the stove. The door had been tramped by muddy feet and spots upon the tablecloths, and a forgotten pipe was on the window-sill. The air was heavy with tobacco smoke and the stale fumes of tea.

Jack's heart was heavy with apprehension. He went up to the left by the ladder on the wall. The bed there had been used, too, and a man's coat was thrown across it. There it was—the major he had built, deflated, deflated. What did it mean? The sound here, what it meant, he would go over to the boarding-house.

Mrs. McManis, a few minutes later, related the interview to her friend Mrs. Turner. "He bumbled in at her," she said, "just when I was putting the potatoes on to boil. 'Where's Helmut?' he asked, started at me, without even looking me the time of day. Then he told me where Helmut was. 'He's not here,' I said, 'and I don't know where he is—she's been gone over a month.' I said, 'Where did she go?' he said, 'To Edmonton.' I said:

"Why did she go?" he started. "Didn't she know I was coming back?" "Where did she say she was going?" "Well, she never said anything to me, as you know," I said.

"I don't understand," he said, "but I never saw her since that night. I don't believe any of my people could. The Women were busy that night."

"Where's Helmut?" he said at last, staring at me as if he didn't see me. "You had an accident in the mine and went out the last train?" "Well, Jack, Mrs. McManis, who has been staying in my house," he said, "told you that she had."

"I know very well a party of thirty had spent the night there—except from town and were staying at Helmut's house. I wouldn't let them in. I certainly have no knowledge of what's been going on in this house since you're gone." I said, very stiff. "Mr. McManis always said that was his one reason for staying here. I could have I wanted to be. 'The two have of course having stayed here,'" he said. "Yes," I said, "the state of things here from English Creek was there, for a week, about six weeks ago."

"I don't think I thought for you good to strike me, but some of the Women was over towards, so I just placed back of him with my fork. I could give him a good eye, but the fork was the other. I think maybe he expected a letter from Helmut, but it didn't write to him. It's more than six days since he saw me, then over a month and not a word from her. And I was good to that girl, though I don't like to tell what I've done for anyone. Now, if Jack Turner had come in a better spirit he might have heard more from me. I'm funny that way, anyone can tell me, but strong horses can't drive me."

Jack turned away to the post-office. His voice sounded queer to him, and his tongue felt like a piece of rope. "Are there any letters for me, Mr. Armstrong?" he asked, hoping his voice was not leading like his heart. "Two have just come for Mrs. Doran," said the postmaster, handing them to him. "I'll be sure you get them as soon as possible. Jack, people come and go at Eagle Mines—come and go—it makes it hard for a postmaster."

Jack went back to his own house—he must get under cover—the eyes of the people he met hurt him—they looked into him, teasing, teasing, staring, gawking, red-hot and stony as ice. He must get somewhere where he could shut the door.

In his own house, Jack sat with the letters in his hand. Helmut had gone, the hell had waited. He was a month late, but Helmut should have waited. Where had she gone?

The letters might tell him—it would be better to know. He opened the first one and found it contained a Government cheque for fifteen dollars payable to Helmut Doran, and it said it was in honour of the Arthur Warren. Jack stared at it without understanding.

The other letter was from Helmut. "Dear Helmut," it said, "I have made over my property allowance to you, and I hope you will accept it from me. You are the only person in Canada who has any claim on me. I have paid every other person in Canada for everything they have ever done for me. You, dear Helmut, I can never pay in money, for you gave me the most precious thing a man can have who goes out as I am going, a memory of something tender and sweet. I have made my will, leaving everything I have to you. I will never forget your last words to me. Nobody ever spoke to me like that before. Will you write to me, Helmut?"

Ever Yours,

Arthur Warren.

CUTICURA HEALS LARGE PIMPLES

Caused Itching, Burning, Also Disfigurement.

"My complexion was completely ruined by pimples which varied in size. Some were large, hard and ugly, while others were just red and swollen. They caused an itching, burning sensation, also disfigurement."

"After using several of remedies for over two years, with but little result, I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I was so pleased with the results that I purchased more, and after using two boxes of Cuticura Soap and one large box of Cuticura Ointment I was completely healed." (Signed) W. E. LOCAL & GENERAL

L. E. Nelson, R.O., Night Specialist, 212 Herald Bldg., Calgary, will make his monthly visit to Edsburry on Saturday, June 16, to the office adjoining Dr. Evans.

Please call, evenings, for appointments.

Very high winds have been experienced during the past week, and accompanied as they were by clouds of dust they have proved extremely disagreeable to merchant and household alike. The newly-unearthed road is an especial source of annoyance, the dust arising therefrom with great persistence and penetrating every crevice along the route.

There is a certain responsibility here which the person that he can not ignore, and as both the town and provincial governments are implicated it would appear to be the logical thing for them to find a remedy.

Several of our merchants have suggested a watering cart.

The cost of this would not be great. In fact, a water-bagette is comparable to the labor involved from the dust.

While leaving school the school building at Grande Centre on Tuesday, Bath, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Adams, accidentally fell and fractured her arm. She was brought into town and her arm attended to, and is now progressing favorably.

Edsburry will be represented at Olds on Thursday, May 24th, in both the football and baseball tournaments. A large number of the townspeople are also preparing to go.

"The British Clipper" will be shown at the Opera House on Saturday, May 22nd. A real sea party. Come and view the bring.

Frank Morton is a happy man. He has a new Ford motor today.

"BEN HUR" AT CABSTAIRS.
Probably the last opportunity you will have of seeing this famous picture. "Ben Hur" will be shown at Edsburry, May 25th, at 8:30.

"The Desired Woman" at the Opera House on Wednesday, May 20th. A fascinating picture.

The new Ford cars are now coming into Alberta in enormous quantities. We will all have one soon.—Advt.

THANKS TO MOTHER

Mrs. E. Gaudin
No doubt I'm owing many thanks To folks each day I'm meeting; Perhaps to those I'm passing by With just a friendly greeting; But I could safely say: "I know I don't have to mother."

Thanks she who gave to me my life, Thanks she who bore the strain, If I was teasing, day or night, Upon a bed of pain.

Thanks she who cooled my fevered brow, She who kept me snug That God would spare the spark of life And take the pain away.

Thanks she who taught me how to read,

She taught me how to write, And common tasks of every day I learned with her sight. She taught me how to love the Lord, Her teaching will remain; For Mother's God today is mine, Oh, praise His matchless Name!

And as the years are fleeting on And Mother's growing old, I often think of things she did, Of things to me she told, That kept my feet from wandering And led me on toward Heaven; I thank the Lord that unto me A Mother's love was given.

If it should be my lot—some day, To stand by Mother's grave, And realize that she had gone Back to the God who waits, There's not a person that I know, None that I could discover, Would fill that place again to me, Just like my own dear Mother.

Friends, why not give the flowers now While our Mothers see their beauty? Set wait until it is too late. Then give, and say it's duty. One's heart has desired earthly friend, We'll never get another, So let's make right here and now To give our thanks to Mother. —Written for Mother's Day. Read at the B.C. Church.

ADVOCATE PLAN OF INSURANCE FOR UNEMPLOYED

Ottawa. The House of Commons committee on industrial and international relations endorsed the principle of unemployment insurance based on compulsory contributions by the state, the employer and the employee in the report issued in the House.

The report states that the necessity for providing some method of unemployment insurance, "will necessarily have to be dealt with some time as a solution in part of the industrial problem of the present day."

The report indicates that the necessity of any plan of unemployment insurance depends upon several of the problems being facing the country at present.

It is of the opinion that the matter should be referred to the provinces to deal with the extent to which they will be willing to accept legislation regarding unemployment insurance and to what extent they will be willing to go.

The committee regretted difficulty in arriving at approximate costs of unemployment insurance because there was no definite method of ascertaining unemployment at any given point in any kind of time.

The committee recommended:

"That the government immediately devise some means whereby the payment of unemployment benefits a period of a year could be reasonably calculated."

The committee also recommended that the government obtain from Great Britain advice on the subject and that the subject be dealt with further by the committee at the next session of parliament.

Discuss Antarctic Plan

Widens Hopes To Launch Scientific Base For Meteorological Station.

Tromsø, Norway. Captain George H. Widens, commanding an expedition, plans to place in the future of Arctic expeditions, said: "It likely will be the halfway house between Chicago and Cape."

Widens said in discussing his plan for an Antarctic flight, that he hoped to make an aerial survey of the coast of the Ross Sea in Greenland's land, for the purpose of determining a suitable base for a meteorological station. Such a station would be a great help in forecasting the weather for Australia, South America and Southern California.

Farm Workers Scarce

Demand In Northern Alberta Exceeds Supply Is Reported.

Winnipeg. The influx of immigrants this season has been well covered, and in northern Alberta there is seriously enough farm help to meet the demands, according to J. R. McGowan, western manager of the Canadian National railway who returned here from a tour of the west.

He estimated that well over a million acres of new land will be cleared and brought under the plow this year in northern Alberta and northern Saskatchewan.

New immigrants, he said, were being used extensively in this work.

Acquire More R.R. Land

Winnipeg, July 1. The Canadian National railway has been advised by the federal government that it has been granted the right to acquire more land in the west for the purpose of building a new line from Winnipeg to the coast of British Columbia.

Amendment Defeated

Ottawa. The Senate rejected the amendment to the act respecting the transportation of mail and international traffic in transporting liquor, which prevented the transportation from one province to another of a half gallon of beer. Senator Dandridge voted against the amendment.

File Appeals In Libel Suit

Refutation In Court Action Chaired By Arthur Currie.

Toronto. Appeals from the verdict of the special jury at the Ontario court last month awarding Mr. Arthur Currie, commander of the Canadian corps in France, £100 damages in his libel action against W. T. R. Preston and F. W. Wilson, of Port Hope, were filed recently. Mr. Preston and Mr. Wilson were not accompanied by counsel when they visited Currie at his home in the city.

One of the chief grounds of Mr. Preston's appeal is contained in a statement that new evidence has been discovered. He claims that an order was issued to the respective units of the Canadian corps about 1:30 p.m. November 10, 1918, that operations would be continued and operations ceased at 11 o'clock on the morning of November 11.

Other grounds include the assertion that the judge was directed and non-directed the jury, that certain evidence was erroneously excluded, and that the judgment was contrary to the evidence.

Mr. Preston and Mr. Wilson filed separate motions of appeal.

Staff Is Kept Busy

Requests For Returns By House Members Are Numerous.

Ottawa. Returns requested by members of the House of Commons are so numerous and voluminous that most of the government's departmental staff are having difficulty in keeping pace with the demand.

This was stated in the House of Commons by Hon. J. A. Boyd, Minister of Finance. Mr. Boyd informed the members that government departments are having difficulty in keeping pace with the demand.

Mr. Boyd made this statement in explaining why it took some time to furnish certain returns requested by members.

Willingdon Opens

Institute For Blind.

New Building Provides Treatment For Sightless In West.

Winnipeg. The opening of the new building of the Canadian National institute for the blind at Winnipeg, will be the means of not only relieving and supporting hundreds of those now afflicted, but of giving the right of at least half of those in Saskatchewan and Manitoba who are blind to the right of education.

This was the repeated statement of successive speakers representative of the institute when His Excellency Viscount Willingdon, governor-general of Canada, officially declared the new building open.

Amendment Defeated

Anti-Smuggling Move Lost By Large Majority In House.

Ottawa. A Conservative anti-smuggling amendment to supply was defeated in the House by a vote of 115 to 59. The amendment was moved by H. K. Anderson, Conservative, Halifax, and was that the government should take necessary action effectively to control the importation into Canada of natural products of a plant or kind produced in Canada under conditions that operate to the detriment of the Canadian producer.

Explorers Reported Safe. British University Reports received here from Capt. Northern, says the German explorers Wilhelm Filchner, the British Admiralty, and the American Admiralty, Playhouse, arrived safely there. Filchner, in 1912, had been reported murdered together with several members of his Tibetan expedition.

Smoking Plant To States

Ottawa. The plant in which Captain George H. Wilson and Carl H. Nelson, from Alaska to Spitzbergen, has left, Transvaal, a ship for Bergen. It will eventually be sent to America on a Norwegian liner.

Formed Permanent Organization

Dr. C. M. Hincks, medical director of the Canadian National Committee for Mental Hygiene, was elected president of the Canadian conference on mental work held in Montreal, June 10 to 12, 1920. The purpose of this first conference was to form a permanent organization for the study of mental work in Canada.

Ask Higher Tariff On Dairy Products

Findings Of U.S. Commission Not Yet Submitted To President.

Washington. The tariff commission's recommendation on dairy and cream duties has not yet been sent to the president. The Canadian Press learned two weeks ago that the findings of the commission, which recently investigated the cost of production in Canadian dairies, were ready for the White House, and it was understood that an increase in the duties would be recommended.

The tariff commission, which claims to represent 50,000 farmers in this country, asked for upward revision of the tariff on practically all products of the farm, except grain on which they already have a protective tariff. In most cases they ask, in their resolution addressed to Congress, about 100 per cent. increase in the existing duties.

No Opposition From Britain

But Chinese Troops Must Not Enter Legation At Peking.

London. The British government has no intention to offer any opposition to the advance of the Chinese Nationalist army on Peking, according to a statement made by the foreign office today.

Mr. Lester-Quinn said the government's only duty was to see that Chinese troops did not enter the legation quarters.

Might Make Separate Pact

British Dominion Could Deal Directly With Washington On Peace Plan.

Washington. The possibility that the British Dominions may make separate treaties with Washington to outlaw war is being discussed here.

Secretary of State Kellogg, whose proposals for treaties between the great powers to outlaw war as an instrument of national policy have been tentatively approved by Britain, said that he had no official information from London that any reservations would be demanded as indicated in news dispatches. He agreed that if any difference of opinion existed as to the exact basis on which Britain would negotiate with Washington, they probably were between Great Britain and her Dominions. He had been informed that London was taking up the whole question with the Dominion before replying to the U.S. Secretary of State's overtures.

Asked if the Dominions would have separate treaties, Secretary Kellogg said that was a matter for the Dominions themselves to decide, in consultation with the British government. In a general way the opinion is expressed here that it would not be inconsistent with the policy of Canada in recent years if Ottawa decided to deal directly with Washington when it comes to a declaration of policy on the prohibition of war and the outlawing of war.

Exports Cut In April

Imports Were Higher and Income Tax Revenue Increased.

Ottawa. Canadian exports in April were lower in volume than a year ago, while imports were higher. Exports from customs and excise were lower by nearly a million dollars in April last than in April, 1917. Revenue from income tax was nearly two million dollars more last month than in April a year ago, according to the monthly statement issued by the Department of National Revenue.

Seeking Observers To Geneva

Washington. While the United States has declined an invitation to participate in the eleventh international labor conference at Geneva beginning May 30, it is learned that both the United States government and the American Federation of Labor will send unofficial observers to watch proceedings.

Railway Manager Arrived

Winnipeg. Poland. Police arrested Stanislas Turk, assistant manager of the railway administration and three other men, charged with selling secret plans for Polish railway construction in case of war to Moscow. The men also are accused of betraying secrets of Polish airplane manufacture.

DID NOT NAME MR. McMURRAY SAYS HON. FORKE

Ottawa. Emphasis denied of any knowledge that Hon. E. J. McMurray, former Solicitor-General, had trafficked in special immigration permits was made at the parliamentary immigration inquiry by Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration.

"I can state emphatically that I did not make any of the statements which Mr. Caldwell says I made about Mr. McMurray," Mr. Forke declared, in referring to the statement by Hon. M. J. Caldwell, of Quebec, that Mr. Forke had named Mr. McMurray in this connection.

"Mr. McMurray's election was in 1915, two years before I came into the department," Mr. Forke continued, "and I know nothing about Mr. McMurray's transactions with the department, if any took place, and since I came into the department I have had no dealings with Mr. McMurray, directly or indirectly."

"Regarding Mr. Caldwell's statement about my telling him I had checked up the records of the department regarding the number of permits issued by my predecessors, and that I said I wrote my predecessor and that he wrote his predecessor, I want to say positively, that if Mr. Caldwell got this information at all, he did not get it from me," Mr. Forke continued.

"At no time did I ever examine or check up the previous records of the department in regard to the number of permits issued by my predecessors, I have no knowledge of the number of permits issued by them and I did not write to any predecessor in connection with the number of permits which had been issued."

Hon. E. J. Manning, (Conservative, Port William), was given permission at the outset of the sitting to make a statement in respect to the casual mention of his name by Hon. Caldwell.

"I wish to state emphatically that in the time I was acting minister of immigration in July, 1918, I personally issued no permits to anyone and no permits were illegally or irregularly issued to anyone," Mr. Manning declared.

"In fact no permits of any kind were issued which were not wholly within the law and the regulations."

Mr. Manning emphatically denied that he had communicated at any time by word or letter with Mr. Forke regarding permits. He said that Mr. Forke would agree with him in this statement.

Salary Increase For Judge Recommended

House Will Have To Approve Report Of Committee.

Ottawa. An increase in salary to Canadian judges has been approved by the special parliamentary committee. The committee's report will, it is stated, recommend an increase of $2,000 in yearly court judges, the same amount to provincial court judges, and $1,000 increase for judges of the supreme court of Canada.

The committee held its sessions in Ottawa. It is understood that the report was only adopted on the evening vote at the chairman.

The committee's recommendation will have to receive the approval of the House.

An increase in salary of $2,000 per annum is also recommended for judges of the exchequer court of Canada.

The committee reached by the committee was that the remuneration paid to judges in Canada was inadequate and should be increased.

May Be Over To Canada

Washington. It is reported here in diplomatic circles that Arthur Sawada, vice-minister to the Japanese embassy here, will be the first Japanese minister to Ottawa. The Japanese embassy declines to comment on the rumor.

Will Not Resign

Winnipeg. Premier Hartman said the Manitoba parliament that the cabinet has no intention of resigning or holding either of the previous demands if in interest from non-official quarters.

Ross Hansen and Anna Augusten, of Oslo, immigrants, were married in the Canadian National Railways Celebration Office by Rev. T. J. Langley, of the Norwegian Lutheran Church, on their arrival in Winnipeg. They desired to face their new life in Canada as man and wife rather than as separate. They will go on a farm near Birch Hills, Sask.
